ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An application wrapper system and method provide a technique for privatizing application software resources from an operating system shared resources. The present invention allows the application software to execute in a secured run-time environment. The preferred embodiments of the present invention eliminates application conflict, protects operating system resources, provides multiple instance run-time for instance made to execute single instance and provides multi-user environment.